COUNCIL OF ECONOMIC ADVISERS: Records, 1981-1989

The Council of Economic Advisers (CEA) was established by the Employment Act of 1946. This Act, reorganization Plan No. 9 (1953) and the amendments to the Employment Act contained in the Full Employment and Balanced Growth Act of 1978 (the Humphrey-Hawkins Act) are the basic governing statutes for the CEA. It is part of the Executive Office of the President and is not considered a federal agency. The CEA's sole function is to advise and assist the President. In addition, the CEA is charged with assisting the President in the preparation of the Economic Report of the President.

The CEA is made up of three Members appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. The Senate Banking Committee has jurisdiction for the confirmation process for the Members.

One of the Members is nominated and confirmed as Chairman. The Council is not “collegial” in nature nor makes decisions as a group. All work assignments and advice/recommendations to the President are made by the Chairman.

The Council has a professional staff including a Special Assistant to the Chairman, a Senior Statistician and staff economists hired as “experts.”

During the Reagan Administration the following individuals were the Chairman of the Economic Advisers:
