GRAY, EDWIN J.: Files, 1981-1982

Office of Policy Development; Director, 1981

Office of Policy Information; Director, 1982

Edwin Gray was the Deputy Assistant to the President for Policy Development and Director of the Office of Policy Development under Martin Anderson in the first year of the administration. When Mr. Anderson left the White House in early 1982, Mr. Gray remained a Deputy Assistant, but was made director of a separate office – the Office of Policy Information. After Mr. Gray left the White House, this office was incorporated back within the Office of Policy Development.

OAs 7868-7870 consist of material created during the 1980 Reagan Presidential campaign. Gray apparently kept this material during his time in the Office of Policy Development. In 1983, after Gray left the White House, the material was examined by the FBI in connection with the “debate gate” controversy over the obtaining of Carter campaign strategy documents by the 1980 Reagan campaign.
